No matter how many times I destroyed its web,

Thus, I let the unwanted companion resided in my side mirror until a year later.

As soon as I finished school, I slaughtered it in cold blood by drowning the side mirror in the strongest insecticide I could find.

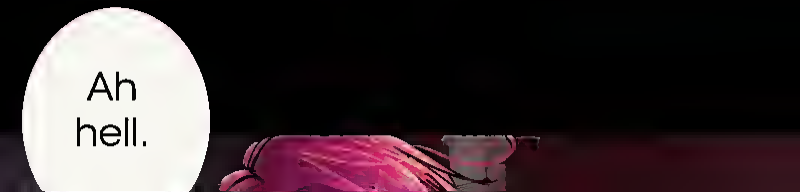
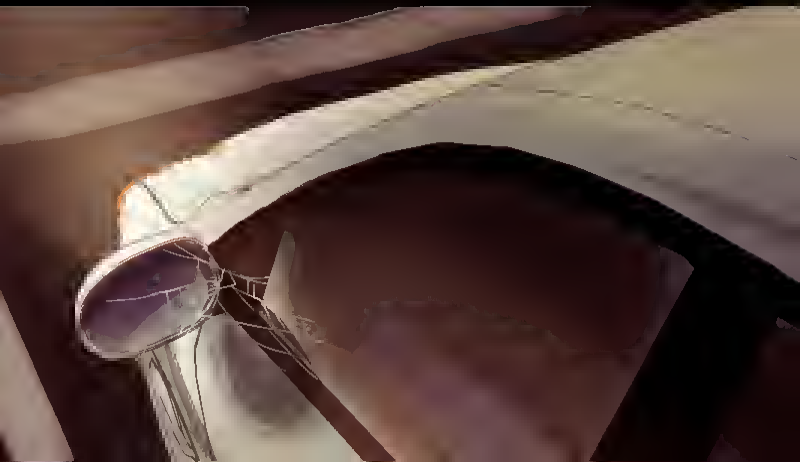
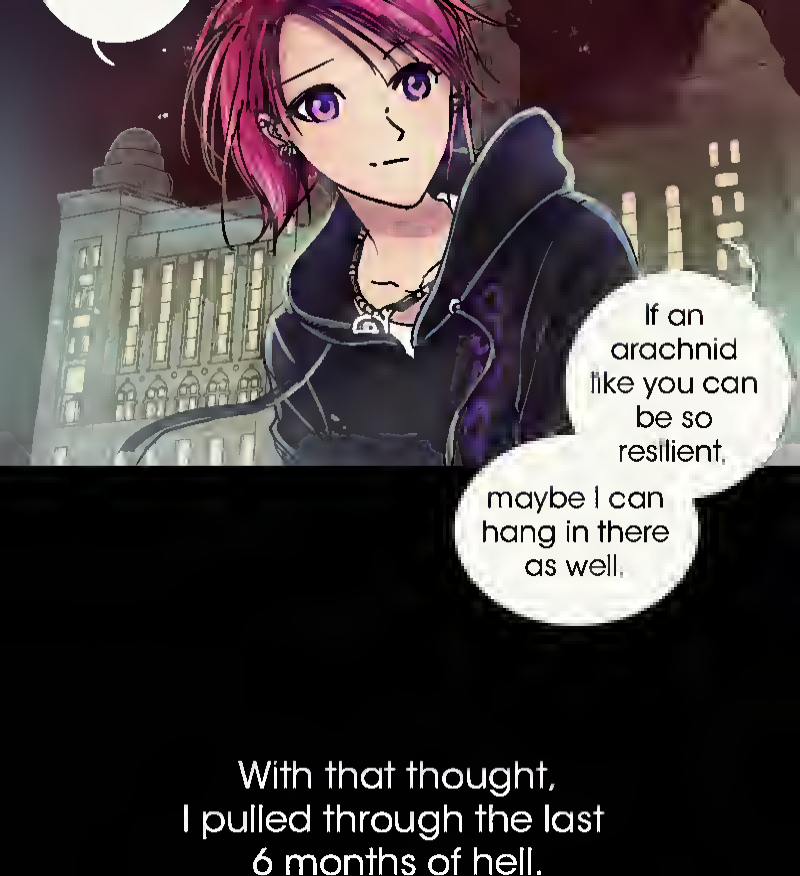
I was always an A & B+ student. The B's usually happened because of

I was a struggling college student, dualing a full time waitering job and full time college enrollment



The next day,
the webs would return.





With that thought,
I pulled through the last
6 months of hell.

A spider used to dwell
in the driver's side mirror of my car.

Though whatever habits you have in school, whether turning in assignments early or late, showing up to class on time etc, you carry those into your professional world.

It's a good idea to train yourself good work ethnics in younger years.

Are you still in school?
Or have you graduated &
entering the work force?
Good, bad, love, hate?

See you next week for
